The dialogue is trite. Now it is impossible that such prodigious movements should pass in silence; and nature teaches that the sounds v r hicli the spheres at one extremity utter must be sharp, and those on the other extremity must be grave ; on which account, that highest revolution of the star-studded heaven, whose motion is more rapid, is carried on with a sharp and quick sound; whereas this of the moon, which is situated the lowest, and at the other extremity, moves with the gravest sound.
